Children May Save Vanishing Whales

If the world's vanishing whales are to be saved, it probably will be thousands of kids who do it.

At least that is the aim of Project Jonah, a non-profit organization in Bolinas, Calif. The above 6th-grade students from the Appomattox Intermediate School have expressed their feelings about the whales' plight through letters, poetry, and art. Their creative works were compiled and sent to Project Jonah. Representatives from this organization will journey to Russia and Japan relaying our messages.

Presently, these two nations are responsible for 83 per cent of the annual whale kill.

"I don't know of anything of this magniture that's ever involved kids," says Gail Madonia, the project's treasurer.

Since the campaign got under way last summer, Project Jonah has received 10,000 pieces of mail from youngsters worldwide. With great enthusiam and pride, the following Appomattox students joined the campaign to save the whales: Eddie Agee, Gary Campbell, Chuck Cuneo, David Doss, Bob Dunnam, Bill Hansen, Jeff Martin, Mark Martin, Charles Mayberry, Roger Lee Mayberry, Glenn Neighbors, Kevin O'Brien, Michael Phelps, Tony Phelps, Greg Pugh, Michael Robinson, John Slifko, Craig Smith, Roger Webb, Terry Woods, Anthony Volturo, Crystal Carter, Helen Coleman, Margie Coleman, Mary Davidson, Cindy Dowdy, Martha Garrett, Lisa Goin, Vickie Handy, Clara Jackson, Teresa Kerr, Arlene Kidd, Agnes Lewis, Vivian McFadden, Susan Musick, Susan Parris and Darlene Powell.

To Offer Remedial Reading

The education department of Lynchburg College will offer a remedial reading service during the summer months for elementary and secondary students of the Lynchburg area. The service will be staffed by Lynchburg College graduate students who will be working under the close supervision of LC faculty members. It will operate from July 3 through August 8 and will focus upon diagnosis and remediation of reading difficulties.

The reading service is provided through the practicum in reading required of LC graduate students specializing in reading. It is the culminating course in the LC reading program and is designed to pull together training which the LC graduate students have acquired in previous courses as well as to give the graduate students an opportunity to obtain a practical experience more in line with the work which they will be doing as reading specialists.

In working with the children attending the practicum, each graduate student will administer certain diagnostic tests and other evaluative instruments to determine specific reading and learning difficulties and will set up and institute a program of remediation for the children with whom they will be specifically working. A written report of findings will be prepared for school and parents to be used for follow-up purposes in the fall.

Parents interested in the services may call Lynchburg College at 845-9071, ext. 271.
